Alien's Visit Says Ufo Expert :

This fascinating article was sent to me via the Plymouth ufo Group and features the groups chairman, Bob Boyd. He has just been given proof that shows the Ministry Of Defence knows all about alien visits to earth.

He has obtained 3 photographs taken by soldiers in Cyprus in 1971. The photographs show a mysterious hovering light and he was told that 1,400 men saw an unexplainable bright light fly above them while on night manoeuvres in Cyprus more than 20 years ago. The MOD collected more than 100 rolls of film after the sighting and the RSM personally sent a film taken by a naval photographer to Whitehall.

Television :

25.3.94 : Sky Television : Sightings : Contacts.

This dealt with alien contacts and was a very interesting programme, dealing with such a controversial subject. Well put together and Very enjoyable.

29.3.94 : Sky Television : Unsolved Mysteries : The Belgium Sightings.

This was a repeat programme concerning the sighting of the triangular ufo seen by over 2,000 people in 1991 over Belgium and also seen over many other parts of Europe and even the United Kingdom. The programme reconstructed the Belgium sightings, and with the use of some great computer graphics, produced a great program.

30.3.94 : Sky Television : X-Files.

This was a great programme as far as I am concerned. It concerned the alleged crash landing of a ufo, and the subsequent cover-up. But the only problem, was that the 'Alien' life form escaped and was on the run. The 'Alien' appeared to be made up of energy and dealt with implants, used to contact/control abductees who had previously been abducted when they were younger. A great programme, that for me was well worth watching.

1.4.94 : Sky Television : Sightings : Monsters.

Like the X-Files, I also enjoyed this programme very much. It dealt with such subjects as the Loch Ness Monster, Big Foot and other Monster sightings. This was well worth a look at.

In last months newsletter, I made mention to a forth coming programme to be shown on Central Television sometime in the Summer of 1994. Well, it appears that it should be screened around August 1994...Keep watching...!

Has 'The Warminster THING' been put to rest once and for all...

On Friday the 15th April 1994,my wife took a phone call for me from a reporter from the Western Morning News,who was trying to track down the British Ufo Society.Unfortunately,I was at work, and the reporter said that he would phone back after 4pm. He asked my wife,if I had seen todays Daily Mail, but she said no. She went and got a copy from the newsagents,so that I would have some idea why the reporter wanted to talk to me.

When I got home,I was somewhat surprised at the message, but there was a slight problem.The founder of the group back in the sixties, Ken Rogers recently died, and as far as I know, he left the group back in the late sixties, early seventies. As far as I knew, the group was now called 'British Flying Saucer Bureau', based in Bristol. I found the telephone number, and duly waited for the phone call. At approx 4pm the phone rang, and it was the reporter. After he introduced himself, he went on to ask, if I had seen a copy of the Daily Mail for that day. I replied that I had only just got a copy and I had only quickly read the article. I was somewhat taken back by the article, and I am sure that it may shatter some peoples illusions about the Warminster area.. The following is the article that appeared in the newspaper...:

Why They Never Cottoned On To The Thing....

It was the photograph that launched a thousand spaceships.

The blurred image of a flying saucer turned the Wiltshire town of Warminster into a mecca for UFO spotters, and claims of other sightings came thick and fast.

But yesterday, almost 30 years later, the picture was exposed as a hoax - by one of the two men who hatched the plot in their local pub.

The Thing, as it was christened, was nothing more than a milk bottle top, a cotton reel and a button.

Retired print worker Roger Hooton, who now lives in Adelaide, owned up after reading in UK Mail, the Daily Mail's international edition, that another famous photo - supposedly of the Loch Ness Monster - was of a model mounted on a toy submarine.

ALIEN.

'I decided it was time to come clean, although I don't know why no one ever spotted it in the first place', said Mr Hooton. 'It always seemed obvious to me because it looked so stupid.'

'But it fooled everyone at the time and carried on fooling them. The flying saucer was even accepted as genuine by the British Ufo Research Association and is listed in the UFO Encyclopaedia.'

Mr Hooton, 52, and his friend Gordon Faulkner, a factory worker, hit on the plan in 1965 after reading about alleged UFO sightings in their local paper.

'We went out to a field and made a flying saucer out of cotton reel and milk bottle cap with the button on top', said Mr Hooton.

'I was dropping it on to the ground and Gordon was photographing it as it fell. There was nothing to indicate speed or size and the background was blank. When we got the film back from Boots, there it was - a flying saucer'.

After the photo appeared in the Warminster Journal, the Thing took on a life of its own. A national newspaper took up the story and Warminster throbbed with hundreds of people hoping to see an alien. The town even spawned its own UFO Newsletter.

'The joke had got out of hand', said Mr Hooton. 'It has sparked a whole new industry in Warminster and it seemed a shame to stop it'.

He has now confessed the hoax to John Spencer, vice-chairman of the British UFO Research Association, who included the Thing in two of his books.

Mr Spencer said: 'It was the picture that first got me involved in the subject. I was 11 at the time and it got me terribly interested. It had always been regarded as one of those photographs that could be or could not be.'

'Mr Hooton felt terribly guilty about it. He wanted to put the record straight'.

Despite knowing the truth, Mr Spencer's faith is unshaken. He said: 'I don't believe in flying saucers or aliens, but I do believe in UFO's. There are things we don't understand in our skies'.

Warminster Journal editor Diana Watkins, whose grandfather published the original photo, said: 'I always used to say that when I saw one I would believe it. I still haven't seen one'.

Daily Mail Friday 15th April 1994.

Well, there you have it... One of the best photographs that was taken of a ufo and believed in by so many people (I must admit, that I fell for it... ED)... bits the dust. This only goes to prove, that photographic evidence of a ufo should never be relied on... At least with the advent of the modern day computer and systems such as computer enhancement available of photographs, lets hope that we are never fooled again... ED.
